

Kings Capital Construction supports El Centro Hispano

More than 50 families were invited to the first annual Kings Capital Construction holiday benefit event Dec. 2 in support of El Centro Hispano, an organization whose mission is to help strengthen Hispanic families in the community.

The celebration took place at the Coliseum-White Plains.

JD Summa and Mike Casarella, principals of Kings Capital Construction, arranged for “Santa” to hand out gift-wrapped jackets and winter boots to 50 children between the ages of 4 and 10.

Kings Capital Construction is a Tarrytown-based commercial general contractor and site development firm.

1. From left: JD Summa, Genevieve Guerin, office manager and executive assistant, Kings Capital Construction; and Mike Casarella and children who attended the event.
2. From left: JD Summa, CEO and president of Kings Capital Construction; Cecelia Bikkal, president of El Centro Hispano’s board of directors; White Plains Mayor Thomas Roach; Mike Casarella, COO and president of Kings Capital Construction; and Isabel E. Villar, founding executive director of El Centro Hispano.
3. The student carolers from Archbishop Stepinac High School in White Plains.